What Philippines' Independence Day mean to me?

Philippines' Independence Day, to me is a celebration of liberty and our identity as Filipinos that wherever we are in the world we get to look back to where we came from, back to our beloved country, the "Pearl of the Orient Seas" and remember our cultures, traits, and traditions.

As newcomers to Canada, we have the opportunity to showcase our proud Filipino heritage and to share our cherished values with our Canadian neighbours and others, too.

What Philippines' Independence Day mean to me?

"Araw ng Kasarinlan" (Day of Freedom) is one of the treasured milestone that we Filipinos achieved in our rich history. It is an opportunity to appreciate the sacrifices and courage of our heroes who fought for our freedom. It is because of their sacrifice that we enjoy the freedoms that we do today.

It is also a time to reflect on what one may contribute or give back to the country as a benefactor of this freedom.

Phillipine National Anthem: "Lupang Hinirang"

The Philippine national anthem is entitled "Lupang Hinirang" and composed by Julian Felipe. "Lupang Hinirang" was first played publicly on June 12, 1898 during the proclamation of Philippine Independence. Its lyrics were adopted from the Spanish poem, Filipinas, which was written by José Palma.

What Philippine Independence Day means to me?

Philippine Independence Day is one of the most significant celebrations for every Filipino. It marks the nation's independence from Spanish rule.

Back in the Philippines it's a national holiday.

Every Filipino citizen has their own way of celebrating Independence day, some people put Philippine flag in their houses while others put miniature flags in their cars.
